Conditions for the transportation of hazardous waste

7. Different types of waste shall be kept separate from each other during transport.

Information

According to Chapter 24, Section 3 of the Environmental Code, this permit may be completely or partly revoked if the reasons stated in the Code apply.

This permit does not release the holder from the obligation to apply for other permits or undergo special examination that may be required for the business.

Regulations on the loading and securing of the cargo are found in the Road Traffic Ordinance (1998:1276) and the National Traffic Safety Agency's regulations (TSFS 2017:25) on securing cargo on vehicles en route.

In accordance with Section 55 of the Waste Ordinance, anyone who runs a professional operation where hazardous waste is generated shall keep records for each type of hazardous waste, including the quantity of waste generated annually and where the waste is transported. The records must be kept for at least three years.

Under the provisions of Section 57 of the Waste Ordinance, when transporting hazardous waste, the records that must be kept on each type of hazardous waste should include:

1. where the waste comes from,
2. the quantity that is transported annually,
3. the mode of conveyance for the waste,
4. where the waste is transported.

The records must be kept for at least a year and, on request, be provided to the supervisory authority or the previous holder of the waste.

According to Section 60 of the Waste Ordinance (2011:927), a transport document shall be drawn up when hazardous waste is conveyed to a new holder. The transport document shall include information on the types and amounts of waste as well as the identity of the conveyor and the recipient.

There are additional provisions in the Waste Ordinance (2011:927) concerning the transport, etc., of waste.

When transporting hazardous waste classified as dangerous goods, the following apply: the Swedish Transport of Dangerous Goods Act (2006:263), the Transport of Dangerous Goods Ordinance (SFS 2006:311), and the regulations concerning the transport of dangerous goods that have been issued by the Swedish Civil Contingencies Agency, the Swedish Maritime Administration or the Civil Aviation Authority.

For the transport of hazardous waste and/or dangerous goods on roads within different counties or municipalities, local transportation regulations may apply.

In the case of waste types covered by the municipal sanitation monopoly, the municipality's consent is required to transport this kind of waste.

For intermediate storage, disposal and treatment of hazardous waste, the provisions of the Ordinance (1998:899) concerning Environmentally Hazardous Activities and the Protection of Public Health apply, which include the possibility that a permit will be required for these procedures.

Legislation on cross-border shipments of waste must be followed. The most important starting point is the European Parliament and Council Regulation (EC) No 1013/2006.
